Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world. The core belief that Popular Science and our readers share: The future is going to be better, and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better.

From properties and processes to design and construction analysis, this book collects the information, data and equations that are needed to design simply and economically on a day-to-day basis. Composites: Design Manual presents the information necessary to facilitate the design and procurement of FRP, Graphite and Aramid Composites. It describes mechanical, physical, and environmental properties of composites and materials such as resins, catalysts, reinforcements, multi-axials, and release agents. Over 100 tables, figures, data sheets, and examples simplify the practicalities of composites.

This volume surveys the current status of many of the important methods and approaches which are central to the study of protein structure and function. Many of the articles in this volume are written to emphasize the general utility of the method or approach which is at its core, and to provide sufficient literature references to enable the reader to adapt the method or approach to other applications. It is hoped that this volume will provide a source from which newcomers as well as experienced scientists may become more familiar with recent developments and future trends in some of the important areas of protein research. The articles which comprise this book are selected proceedings from the Symposium of American Protein Chemists, which was held in San Diego, California, September 30 to October 3, 1985. The goal of the organizers of this first symposium was to provide a forum for discussion and interaction among scientists whose interests span the broad spectrum of protein structure and function research. The concept and timing of the symposium well received as evidenced by the approximately 500 delegates to the was symposium. The inaugural meeting was marked by a strong scientific program with over 140 papers presented in either a lecture or poster format.
